Washington post covid 19 vaccine tracker

One key to market success is learning to recognize trends, overall directions that stocks are taking, and then riding those trends towards profitable returns. Sometimes, that task is easy; for instance, the five years from 2017 through the end of 2021 saw a prolonged run on generally increasing values. Sometimes, it's more difficult; take a look at the charts for 2022 year-to-date and you'll quickly see that there is no long-term direction of movement here. CNBC's Jim Cramer, however, believes Yahoo Finance Live looks at several of the day's trending stock tickers, Electric vehicles (EVs) are clearly the next big thing in the automotive industry, and they are supported by both social and political pressures toward 'green' technologies. For drivers, they offer a wide range of advantages over gasoline-powered cars: improvements in performance, fewer moving parts to wear out, quieter operations, easier integration into wireless networks. There are drawbacks, too. For now, EV battery range can match gasoline engines - but only at a higher cost for an already eAs the South China Morning Post (SCMP) reports, the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) just added five more China-based-but-U.S.-listed companies to its list of stocks at risk of delisting over disclosure concerns. Shares of Alibaba Group Holding Limited (NYSE: BABA), Baidu (NASDAQ: BIDU), IQIYI (NASDAQ: IQ), and Futu Holdings (NASDAQ: FUTU) are all down significantly in response. As of 10:30 a.m. ET, Alibaba stock is off 4.7%, Baidu 7%, and IQIYI 8.5%, and Futu Holdings is leading the sector lower with a 9.7% loss.DEEP DIVE It sure has been a wild ride for investors over the past few weeks, with the benchmark S&P 500 rising 10% from March 8 through March 30. But the broader stock market is still down for 2022.(Bloomberg) -- U.S. President Joe Biden's plan to tackle record gasoline prices with an unprecedented release of emergency oil reserves may stifle domestic crude drilling just when it's needed most. The move is in retaliation against Western sanctions imposed on Russia over its invasion of Ukraine. Moscow, which says it is conducting a "special military operation" in Ukraine, describes the Western measures as an economic war.Shares of Clovis Oncology (NASDAQ: CLVS) jumped 80% this week, according to data from S&P Global Market Intelligence. Clovis' big move didn't come until Thursday, however, when the company announced positive data regarding its drug Rubraca (rucaparib). It was a big development for the company as its shares had fallen significantly from last year, when it was trading as high as $11 a share early in February.Two outwardly positive developments for the company weren't enough to prevent a minor investor sell-off.Stocks are still getting slammed in 2022, though we may be starting to see some light at the end of the tunnel.What happened For the second day running, shares of semiconductor giant Advanced Micro Devices (NASDAQ: AMD) fell in Thursday trading as selling accelerated. Note: Due to adjustments in reporting, Pennsylvania removed 1.2 million doses on Nov. 23. On March 13, the CDC reported 4.6m doses due to a data anomaly; in reality, 2.98m fell within a 24-hour period.Data as of 4:00 a.m. ET.About two-thirds of the country is fully vaccinated in over a year of distributing shots. More than a million doses per day were administered nationwide November through January, but rates have since declined, according to the latest data from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, including first doses, second doses and boosters. Share of population given at least one doseShare of population fully vaccinatedData as of 4:00 a.m. ET.Note: The U.S. total includes doses provided to Republic of Palau, Federated States of Micronesia and the Marshall Islands, as US-affiliated Pacific Islands. The CDC is underreporting vaccinations in Utah by 100,000 people.All adults have been eligible for a shot since April. In May, shots were authorized for almost 17 million children between 12 and 15. Another 28.5 million children ages 5 to 11 can now receive vaccinations, making 87 percent of Americans eligible for a coronavirus vaccine.[For unvaccinated, coronavirus is soaring again]Public health and government leaders said that racial and ethnic equity would be critical in distributing vaccines, but data collection on the race of recipients has been poor.These charts show the percent of the population in each racial or ethnic group that has received a vaccine so far. Alaskan Native and Native American populations have a higher rate of vaccination, which tribal leaders have attributed to their sovereignty and emphasis on prioritizing elders and their communities. Because so much race information is missing, the vaccine rate for each group is understated.The risk of hospitalization and death from covid-19 rises with age, and vaccination rates have followed that pattern, with prioritization for people in nursing homes and for older Americans. Rates jumped this fall when data was included from Texas for the first time.[Tracking coronavirus cases, deaths and vaccinations worldwide]Alabama has fully vaccinated 2,484,171 people, covering 53.8% of the eligible population, 5 and older... and 50.7% of the state's entire population. 868,156 people have received a booster shot, covering 34.9% of fully vaccinated people.
